2009

Food. That's right. Camp food is getting a face lift. We all love to eat and this year and the year's following we are turning out some grub that will make your aunt Myrtle scream for mercy and slap her cheeks with her tongue. This is the fine print where millionaire producers and moguls limit their legal responsibilities and liabilities by getting out of over promising and under delivering. All hype and no follow through. Well, this year at camp, you won't have to worry about that. We aren't over or under promising. What you see is what you get. CAMP. Give God a week. Eat food. Make friends that can last a lifetime. Jump in the Gravity ball and roll down a hill. So what if it seems a little dangerous. Life was never intended to be safe anyway. Eat food. Really, really good food. Did we mention the go karts? What about a yearbook to take home to remember the summer's memories long after your hair falls out and you get dentures. I guess we will have food too. Enough said.
